

The next day, Wilf and Wilma went to the beach. A lot of bones lay on a plastic sheet but, most exciting of all, the skull of the mammoth had been excavated.

“It’s huge,” said Wilf, “but it only has one tusk.”
“We may still find the other tusk,” the man said.
Then there was a shout. The tusk had been found!

